Shortlisting and Interview Process

Q.1 What would be the criteria of shortlisting by the companies?

A.1 The criteria for shortlisting is determined by the participating organizations themselves and ICAI does not intervene in the selection process. However, the maximum number of shortlisting by recruiting entities will not exceed 10 times the number of vacancies they declared. Also, the participating organisations usually shortlist depending upon overall educational qualifications, Number of attempts, other attributes, Completion of Articleship training and in case more number of candidates qualify the selection criteria (Restriction being 10 times the number of vacancies) companies may choose on random basis as per their choice.

Organisations participating in the Campus Placement Programme prefer that the candidates selected by them should be ready to join the organisations immediately and should not claim that their Articleship training is pending and require more time to join, which will affect the very purpose of the campus placement programme and its success which is primarily driven by number of organisations participating and the positions offered.

Q.2 What is the second round of shortlisting by companies and how is it beneficial to the candidates?

A.2 The online shortlisting by the participating organizations is done in two rounds at each centre. In case the recruiting entity has not received enough number of consents from the candidates after first round of shortlisting it may opt for second round of shortlisting. Also second round shortlisting will be restricted to total vacancy*10 times i.e. (previous consent + new shortlisting total =vacancy*10 times).

Q.3 What would be the criteria for selection in the second round of shortlisting by the companies?

A.3 The criteria for shortlisting the candidates for second round is:

Step 1: After first round of shortlisting by companies, candidates would mark their consent online.

Step 2: First round of consent date will be closed and now company can see and shortlist the remaining candidates from that particular centre and following database as mentioned below will be visible to company for shortlist.

- candidates who have not been shortlisted by any company
- candidates shortlisted but have not given consent to any company
- candidates who have given consent to 3 or less than 3 companies

Step 3: Again the shortlisted candidates in second round can give their consent within stipulated time limit.

Q.4 What if a candidate fails to give consent after first round of shortlisting? Whether the candidate can give consent to the companies that have shortlisted him/her in the first round after being shortlisted in the second round?

A.4 A candidate should give consent upto the last date of consent sending by the candidates as specified in the announcement in each round itself. However, after being shortlisted in the second round the candidate can give consent only to those companies that have shortlisted them in the second round and not to the companies that have shortlisted them in the first round. In other words, the consent for the shortlisting done in the First Round has to be given on the dates prescribed for the Consent for the First Round and not in the Second Round.
